

my writer's voice sounds: simplistic, lacking in vocabulary, and unfocused. My hope for the future is that you will begin to notice good changes for us, by how we write, as well as what we write about. My hope is to become a more interesting writer in 2018, by pulling the distractions out of my world.

Within this week we will spend time away from our home, going to Virginia to be with my family. Maybe this time away from our house will help us make the fresh 2018 start we are so looking forward to.

May you and your family have a Merry Christmas week, and a Happy New Year! Here's to seeing you all in 2018, and to the growth and journeys we will go forth on together! Happy Adventuring!
